Healing Meals Program

The Ceres Community Project

Ceres' core program Healing Meals for Healthy Communities includes the following key components: 1) Supporting primarily low-income individuals dealing with serious illness with free and low-cost delivered and nutrient-rich organic meals, nutrition education, and a community of caring; 2) Involving young people as volunteer gardeners and chefs, giving them direct, hands-on experience of the difference that fresh, healthy foods and community make, and of their own capacity to contribute while building life and work-ready skills; and 3) Engaging people of all ages and from all walks as volunteers and in-kind contributors in order to connect them to others and to their value as an integral part of the community.

During 2016, Ceres Community Project provided 96,713 meals to 695 client families from five kitchen locations in Marin, Sonoma and Alameda counties, California. 431 teens were engaged in 23,136 hours of work-based learning in an organic food production garden and five commercial kitchen operations.

Clients surveyed three months after they have stopped receiving the meals report a 23% increase in vegetable consumption compared to before they participated in the program, and nearly 80% have reduced the amount of fast and processed food they are eating. 100% say that the meals were extremely important to their healing, and 83% say that what they learned about healthy eating and nutrition was extremely important to them; 93% report that the meals helped reduce their social isolation, helping them feel more connected to the community; 85% say that receiving the meals helped to ensure that they ate even when they didn't feel like it.

Youth who are active for at least six months are 29% more likely to be eating 3 servings of vegetables each day and the percentage that say they eat fast food either daily or frequently decreases by 54%. Teens are also 50% more likely to be encouraging friends and family to make healthier choices, and 28% more likely to be cooking meals from scratch at home. On average, youth are 40% more likely to say they feel "extremely confident" on 11 different culinary skills and 4 basic gardening skills.

Program Expansion:

- •We completed the move into our new Santa Rosa program site at the SAY Dream Center and in the process closed the two-day per week program site we had operated at the Hanna Boys Center for two and a half years. The new program site gives us 24/7 access to the commercial kitchen we remodeled in 2015, along with a café space and offices. We began our afterschool Youth Program in early February 2016 with youth volunteering two afternoons a week to make meals for families in need. We expanded to three days per week in June 2016. The new site engaged 102 youth in 4,685 hours of mentoring and work-based learning 70% more youth than we had served in the old site and more than double the hours. Meal volume served out of this site was only slightly higher but will increase considerably in our second year.
- •We completed a 12 week pilot program in Alameda County. Working out of a commercial kitchen on the site of Alameda Point Collaborative in Alameda, CA, we engaged 11 formerly homeless youth in 318 hours of education about nutrition and healthy cooking. The 1,079 meals they prepared were delivered to 15 clients at Charlotte Maxwell Clinic in Oakland, all of whom have cancer and are living at or below 200% of the federal poverty level. We ultimately determined that it was not cost effective to maintain this program site but will begin serving a small cohort of Charlotte

Maxwell's clients from one of our other program sites.

•We opened a small café at our Santa Rosa program site. Open Monday - Friday from 9am to 2pm, the café provides a range of opportunities for paid work experience for youth while giving us an opportunity to reach a new market with healthy organic foods and nutrition education.

Client Program Development:

- •Thanks to a $60,900 grant from North Bay Cancer Alliance, we completed year one of a two year research study evaluating the benefits of several strategies to support low income clients continuing to eat well after they leave the meal program. We are testing delivered veggie boxes, three nutrition and cooking classes, and the combination of veggies boxes plus classes.
- •We added a bilingual/bicultural Client Team member to our staff, and continued the process of translating all materials and web pages into Spanish.
- •We created standard 16 week blocks of menus and began complete nutritional analysis of each block of meals to determine specific diagnoses that can be served via a medically tailored nutrition model.

Youth Program development:

- •During 2016, 431 youth volunteers contributed 23,136 hours of service learning in organic food nutrition, gardening and preparation valued at $273,298.
- •We added 23 new Teen Leaders to the program, 5 in Marin and 18 in Sonoma County, and 53 youth received their green aprons after having completed 6 months in the program.
- •Youth staff completed 3 trainings, including a two-day Pro-Act Training on how to de-escalate difficult or violent situations.
- ·We created multiple opportunities for youth to receive paid work experience:

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a - Program Service Accomplishments

- 1) Our new Ceres' café provides ongoing employment for at least two youth as the Café assistant and dishwasher and prep cook.
- 2) The café also provides paid work experience internships for youth who have been in foster care and who are being supported by SAY, the organization operating the campus where we are now located. In 2016 we provided three youth with internships in the café.
- 3) We created a pathway to paid catering work for any Ceres' youth who has been active as a volunteer for at least three months. In 2016 18 youth were paid through this opportunity.

Adult Volunteer Program:

Ceres work was supported by 583 adult volunteers who contributed 24,336 hours of service annually valued at $499,332. More than 60% of adult volunteers report that they have made positive changes in their eating habits since becoming involved.

Community Education & Outreach:

Ceres Community Project also focuses on broad-based education about the connection between fresh, healthy food, strong social networks, healing and wellness. This work includes our classes, programs offered at local community clinics, sales of our cookbooks, our café and catering operation featuring locally grown and organic whole foods, and media outreach. Our website, social media and monthly newsletters feature articles on health and wellness issues and recipes.

During 2016 we offered 79 nutrition education classes reaching 461 people. The largest programs included:

•10 Healing Foods Basics and Healing Foods Essentials classes taught by Ceres'

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b - Program Service Accomplishments

Nutrition Education Manager (including 1 class in Spanish) reaching 149 participants

•48 Nutrition for Wellness classes, 24 each at West County Health Center's

Forestville Wellness Center and at Alexander Valley Heath Center (two federally qualified health centers) reaching 143 patients.

•11 classes reaching 78 participants that were held in libraries across Sonoma County.

We catered two dozen community events providing learning opportunities for teens and a direct experience of how delicious organic whole foods can be to more than 1,285 people.

We sold 474 copies Nourishing Connections Cookbooks helping 474 additional families learn to cook and eat for health.

We published and distributed a white paper, The Power of our Food Choices, which compiles significant research on the impact of our food choices on personal, public and environmental health.

Media coverage in 2016 included television, radio, print and online stories reaching million peoples of with messages about the vital link between what we eat and the health of both people and planet. Highlights included Ceres' founder and Executive Director Cathryn Couch being named a CNN Hero for 2016 and Ceres' work featured multiple times on CNN.
